Why Boston for MedTech

Boston is where MedTech innovation happens and where critical decisions get made.

From early-stage startups to global OEMs, the region brings together the full ecosystem needed to design, develop, and commercialize medical devices. MEDevice Boston puts you in the center of it.

$3.5B+ in annual NIH funding

What it means for you: Billions of dollars are actively funding new medical research and device development in this region, creating a steady pipeline of projects, partnerships, and supplier needs.

$6.8B+ in life sciences venture funding

What it means for you: A highly funded startup and scale-up ecosystem actively investing in new technologies, partnerships, and suppliers.

15%+ of the U.S. drug development pipeline

What it means for you: A concentrated market of companies actively developing products, many of which require new components, materials, and manufacturing solutions.

62M+ sq ft of lab and R&D space

What it means for you: A dense network of companies and teams working on active projects, creating more opportunities for in-person meetings, faster follow-up, and ongoing business.

Massachusetts is one of the most active MedTech markets in the country, with a strong concentration of companies, research institutions, and ongoing investment in innovation.
